About the Almanac

On the following pages appears a variety of information and statistical material about the US Air Force—its people, organization, equipment, funding, activities, bases, and heroes. This “Almanac” section was compiled by the staff of Air Force Magazine. We especially acknowledge the help of the Secretary of the Air Force Office of Public Affairs in its role as liaison with Air Staff agencies in bringing up to date the comparable data from last year’s Almanac.

A word of caution: Personnel figures that appear in this section in different forms will not always agree (nor will they always agree with figures in command, field operating agency, and direct reporting unit reports or in the “Guide to USAF Installations Worldwide”) because of different cutoff dates, rounding, differing methods of reporting, or categories of personnel that are excluded in some cases. These figures do illustrate trends, however, and may be helpful in placing force fluctuations in perspective.

The Air Force in Facts and Figures

Structure of the Force

How the Air Force Is Organized

There is considerable variation in how the major commands and subordinate units of the Air Force are organized. This overview describes the typical organization chain.

The Department of Defense (DoD) is a Cabinet agency headed by the Secretary of Defense. It was created in 1947 to consolidate pre-existing military agencies—the War Department and the Navy Department. Subordinate to DoD are the three military departments (Army, Navy, and Air Force), each headed by a civilian secretary.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) constitute the corporate military leadership of DoD. The chairman and vice chairman of the JCS serve full-time in their positions. The service chiefs are the military heads of their respective services, although JCS responsibilities take precedence.

The Department of the Air Force is headed by the Secretary of the Air Force, who is supported by a staff called the Secretariat. The Chief of Staff, USAF, heads the Air Staff, and the military heads of the major commands report to the Chief of Staff.

Most units of the Air Force are assigned to one of the major commands (see p. 79). Major commands are headed by general officers and have broad functional or geographic responsibility. Commands may be divided into numbered air forces.

The fundamental unit of the working Air Force is the wing. The typical air force base is built around a wing. Until recently, most wings were headed by colonels but now are usually under the command of a general officer. An objective wing typically contains an operations group, which includes aircrews, intelligence units, and others; a logistics group, which can include maintenance and supply squadrons; a support group, which can include such functions as security forces and civil engineers; and a medical group.

Most individual officers and airmen are assigned to a squadron, which may be composed of several flights.

In addition to these, there are numerous others, including centers, field operating agencies, and direct reporting units.

May 1998

The May 1992 Almanac detailed a far-reaching transformation in USAF's major commands. To help illustrate changes in the force, we turned to wildlife photographers Tom and Pat Leeson, who provided photographs of a bald eagle and its young eaglets. The symbol proved popular with readers, and in 1997 we again turned to the Leesons for the eagle in our Air Force 50th anniversary Almanac. The only eagle unique to North America, this national symbol is also becoming as closely identified with Air Force Magazine's Almanac.

Legendary leaders of USAF's predecessor organizations included (left) Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, and Gen. Carl A. Spaatz (center), who succeeded him as commanding general, AAF. Maj. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg (right) was Ninth Air Force commander when this photo was taken at a ceremony in Luxembourg in April 1945. Vandenberg went on to succeed Spaatz as USAF Chief of Staff.

The title General of the Army for Henry H. Arnold was changed to General of the Air Force by an Act of Congress May 7, 1949. The position of Chief of Staff was established by a DoD-approved Army-Air Force Transfer Order issued Sept. 28, 1947.

^aThe Air Corps became a subordinate element of the Army Air Forces June 20, 1941. Since the Air Corps had been established by statute in 1926, its disestablishment required an act of Congress, which did not take place until 1947. Between March 9, 1942, and Sept. 18, 1947, the Air Corps continued to exist as a combatant arm of the Army, and personnel of the Army Air Forces were still assigned to the Air Corps.
