

Chief Master Sergeant James A. Roy, USAF
Senior Enlisted Leader, U.S. Pacific Command

Chief Master Sgt. James A. Roy serves as the Senior Enlisted Leader and advisor to the United States Pacific Command Combatant Commander and staff. He provides an enlisted perspective on AOR strategic vision, theater security cooperation to include partner nation professional enlisted development, and the operational readiness of 200,000 United States military personnel. Chief Roy creates awareness and provides guidance on the commander's theater strategic objectives to all United States enlisted personnel. He serves as senior mentor for all command senior enlisted assigned to service component Headquarters, Sub-Unified Commands as well as Joint Task Force command senior enlisted leaders. As a command representative, he presents an enlisted perspective to countries requesting assistance in developing and maintaining a corps of professionally committed technically and tactically competent enlisted leaders.

Chief Roy grew up in Monroe, Michigan and entered the Air Force in September 1982. His background includes a myriad of leadership roles at squadron, group, numbered air force and combatant command levels. Before assuming his current position, he served as Command Chief Master Sgt., United States Forces, Japan and Fifth Air Force, Yokota Air Base, Japan. He was appointed to this position June 2007.
